Distance entrance examination - guidelines

1. The distance entrance examination is an alternative for those applicants who cannot be present at the appointed date and time of the entrance examination at the Faculty of Psychology, because they live abroad.
2. The applicant should submit the distance entrance examination request form until the end of the online registration in the Internet system for candidates IRK. The signed document must be sent to the following e-mail address: cogsci@psych.uw.edu.pl
3. The distance entrance examination must be taken on the same date and at the same time as the entrance examination at the Faculty of Psychology.
4. The distance entrance examination will be available on the Kampus general university e-learning platform <https://kampus.come.uw.edu.pl/?lang=en>
5. The applicant must register in the Kampus platform at least 3 days before the examination.
6. The applicant must have a Skype account.
7. On the day of the examination the applicant:
 - a. must have an access to a quiet room without a presence of any other person, a computer with a good internet connection, speakers (or headphones) and a microphone.
 - b. must connect via Skype (audio and video) with the Faculty of Psychology account no later than 20 minutes before the start of the examination.
 - c. must prove his/her identity by means of an identity document via video Skype connection.
8. The applicant shall not cheat nor attempt to cheat in the examination. The use of any kind of resources - like scientific materials, notes or Internet information, as well as the presence of other person is not allowed during the examination.
9. If the applicant does not meet all the requirements (eg. does not meet the deadlines, does not prove his/her identity or cheats in the examination), the Faculty Admission Board may decide not to admit the applicant to the examination or to discontinue it. The Board's decision is final.

I have read and understood the guidelines for the distance entrance examination. I undertake to comply with the requirements.
